PUTNAM CASE HEARD.

Decision Reserved in Case of Bugbee's from her husband, Nelson L. Frink the grounds of cruelty. Just what cruelty was is not known, because evidence was taken a few weeks

Friday morning a short calendar of the superior court was held here, Judge Gardiner Greene of Norwich on the bench. There are two cases assigned for trial before a jury next week, that of Frank S. Martin vs. the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and William N. Potter, administrator, vs. Mary L. Turner. The St. Martin case was tried here last year and the jury awarded the plaintiff $4,000. The railroad took an appeal to the supreme court and a the plaintiff $4,000. The railroad took an appeal to the supreme courf and a new trial was ordered, error having been found in the judge's charge to the jury. It is a suit over a railroad collision in this city three years ago, when the plaintiff received what it is claimed are permanent injuries. The railroad admits negligence and the case is solely based upon the question of damages, that is, the amount the railroad should pay Mr. St. Martin.

There was considerable interest displayed in the arguments on a demarrer in the case of Bugbee's appeal rer in the case of Bugbee's appeal from the board of relief. At the time the board of relief. At the time the board of relief of the town of Putnam was in session Mrs. Bugbee, a large property owner, was unable to appear in person before the board because of illness, to be sworn and give cause of illness, to be sworn and give put in the superior court, has been on and off the docket of this county for twelve years. Her attorney, John F. Carpenter, with Mrs. Bugbee's agent, called on the board and asked that they adjourn to Mrs. Bugbee's home, where she might be sworn. Instead of doing that the board appointed one of its members, Fred W. Seward, to go to Mrs. Bugbee's home and secure such data as might be desired relative to her real estate holdings, their values and the like. Now, ings, their values and the like. The pupils of the Riverside grammar school commemorated the one hundredth anniversary of the town of Griswold by holding special exercises in Assembly hall, Friday afternoon. The day was so stormy that only a few visitors were present. The children marched into the room while Madeline Brennan played the plano. The opening number was by the school orchestra. Miss Hodgkinson and Marguerite Young violins, Francis Brown and Royal Babcock cornets, Harry Paul, drum and Miss Alice Brown, plano. The eighth grade sang Dawn of Day. There were several sketches which were written by George D. Prentice. He was the editor of the Louis-ville Journal and was born in Griswold. One was The Passing of the Years, Ellen Willcox. David Ballou recited another called New England, and Agnes McGovern recited The Pearl and the Star. Hermon Wechsler recited The Eidelweiss by John T. Bolles and Ruth Robertson gave a story poem. The assemblage sang assemblage sang Home Sweet Home, preceding a talk on The History of Griswold, by D. L. Phillips. He gave an excellent description of the organization of the town and of the schools from their earliest days. The talk was chiefly on the educational side of the town. The exercises were closed by singing The Star Spangled Bancruelty was is not known, because the evidence was taken a few weeks ago in chambers before a committee appointed by the court and consisting of Lawyer Charles L. Burglars entered the store of Charles Seder in the Bradley building on Elm street sometime during the early hours of Friday morning, and carried away coats and overcoats in considerable number, but what the exact amount of his loss is Mr. Seder was unable to determine Friday.

The break was discovered by a clerk when the store was opened Friday morning, it being at once noted that the stock had been disturbed and misplaced.

There is a stairway at the rear of the store and the burgiars ascended this, broke out a window and gained access to the store through one of the ante rooms.

The burgiars left nothing by which they can be traced. There was some evidence to indicate that hats and furnishings were taken, but this is not positively known. The burgiary is the first that has been reported here for a considerable period.

Found Sleeping Under Tree.

Peter Wells, who has had somewhat of a spectacular career as regards his appearances in the city court, was before Judge Geissier Friday morning. Wells was found sleeping under a tree in the Providence Street section of the city, notwithstanding that the temperature was down below the freezing point. In court he inquired whether there was an objection to people sleeping out under trees in Putnam and was informed that the court regards the practice that the court regards the practice under certain conditions as not for the best interests of the community. Wells was sent to jall for 30 days.

The storm was very severe in this section throughout the afternoon, but reached its most turbulent period between three and four o'clock. At about that time pole lines began to break down throughout this section. There was more of this trouble to the south than in this immediate section, but isolated cases of trouble of that nature were reported hereabouts. Drivers had one of the toughest afternoons they probably will be called upon to face during the season. The rainfall was in excess of an inch.
